MIT Office of Research Computing and Data Hands On Help Pages

The MIT Office or Research Computing and Data (ORCD) provides access and support for the compute and data needs of a wide range of research activities. These pages provide help material for hands-on working with ORCD supported services.

Help working with ORCD services is also available through email to orcd-help@mit.edu, please feel free to contact us with questions and suggestions. For more information on existing documentation, office hours, and other ways to get help, please see our Getting Help page.

February 11, 2026